How to Submit Your Lineage

We are not a lineage society, so you are not required to submit your lineage to join. We encourage you to submit it to help other cousins with their research and to preserve your lineage for your descendants. Access to the website is a perk of membership. Safeguards are in place to protect information of living family members which can be accessed only through the genealogist.

Your lineage may be submitted in any format which is easy for you. You may start with yourself and work backward one generation at a time, or you can find your most recent ancestor in the database and work forward from there to yourself.

We are striving to have our database meet accepted genealogical standards, which means that we require documentation for every fact which you submit. If you are stuck on finding this documentation, we may be able to help you with that. Our goal is to have two separate sources for each fact. If you have an online tree on Ancestry.com, FamilySearch.org, etc. which has images of records attached, you can send me a link to your tree and I can get the documentation I need from there.

For each generation, we would like the following information:
